PANEL DISCUSSION: "GUNS, FREEDOM & CATHOLIC SOCIAL TEACHING"—MONDAY, JUNE 8

St. Ignatius Church, Baltimore, will host a panel discussion, open to the public, devoted to the gun rights movement and Catholic social teaching, on Monday, June 8, at 7:30 PM. The panel will include Baltimore County Chief of Police, Jim Johnson, former Maryland Jesuit provincial and Loyola University professor of law and business, Fr. Tim Brown, SJ, and author and MICA professor of philosophy Firmin DeBrabander. Sean Caine of the Archdiocesan office of Communications will moderate. This panel will take up the intensely debated issue of gun rights and gun control. There are more than 300 million privately owned guns in America. The nation is quickly approaching an armed society, and the gun lobby is enjoying immense success loosening regulations, and passing expansive gun rights laws. This is seen most prominently in the emergence of guns into the public sphere across much of the nation. What does easy access to guns, and their increasingly prominent place in the public sphere, mean for freedom? The gun lobby argues that guns equal freedom. That is one of its principal arguments. What does the success of the gun lobby portend for democracy, and civil society? What does Catholic Social teaching have to tell us about the present state of expansive gun laws in America? What is the impact of our armed society on the plight of the poor and the vulnerable? About the panel participants: Jim Johnson is Baltimore County chief of police, and chairman of the National Law Enforcement Partnership to Prevent Gun Violence. According to its mission statement, the Partnership is “an alliance of the nation’s law enforcement leadership organizations concerned about the unacceptable level of gun violence in the United States. The Partnership is working to address the pervasive nature of gun violence and its horrific impact on community and officer safety.” Tim Brown, S.J. is the former Provincial for the Maryland Province of the Jesuits, and Associate Professor of Law and Social Responsibility at Loyola University’s Sellinger School of Business. Firmin DeBrabander is Professor of Philosophy at the Maryland Institute College of Art. He is also author of the recent book Do Guns Make Us Free? Democracy and the Armed Society, published by Yale University Press. Sean Caine is Executive Director of Communications for the Archdiocese of Baltimore Location: St. Ignatius Church 740 N. Calvert Street, Baltimore, MD 21202 There is no cost for this event.

TALK WITH YOUR LOVED ONES ON END-OF-LIFE ISSUES

Illness and death – whether our own or that of a loved one – are issues many of us avoid thinking and talking about until they are immediately confronting us. Too often we are unprepared for the questions that arise, and find ourselves making difficult decisions in the midst of a crisis, without the benefit of time and reflection. Maryland's bishops have released a pastoral letter, Comfort and Consolation, on care for the sick and dying to encourage Catholics to take that time now, before facing a crisis, so that when illness and death inevitably come, we can face them with the comfort and peace of understanding our faith, and knowing our Lord is there to embrace us in our hour of need.
